Winter in Ontario: Then and Now

November to March

Full day, limited to groups of 40 or less

Bring your class to the Georgina Village Museum for a full-day, hands-on journey into early winter life. Students will discover how settlers adapted to Canada's cold, compare holiday traditions in two historic homes, and explore 19th-century leisure and industry at the train station. Activities include parlour games, and a take-home Christmas craft.

Heritage Life

March to October

Half and full days available, limited to groups of 40 or less

This program is optional as a half-day or full-day visit. With a longer visit there are more activities. Teachers can select activities to build their own itinerary. Activities may include candle making, country dance, farm fences, heritage kitchen, low-tech laundry, old-time toys, schoolyard games, sheep to shirt, house tour and a mini-century schoolhouse experience.

Century Schoolhouse

Year-round

Half and full days available, limited to groups of 40 or less

This program is optional as a half-day or full-day visit. Experience a day-in-the-life of a turn-of-the-century student. Students will come to understand that 19th century school life had similarities to today's. Though there are differences, we can relate to the experiences of children in the past. Through role play they will compare their own lives with the lives of settler children. As well as in-class lessons, the visit includes old-time schoolyard games and a craft activity.

Note: Times, dates and prices are subject to change without notice.

Things to know:

- Portions of the programs take place in cold and/or damp weather conditions, dress appropriately.
- Half-day visits run between three and four hours. Full-day visits run between four and five hours. Visits can be adapted to suit busing times.
